Reading value of a cell, if equal to zero insert value as 0; and if not insert it as blank cell I need to write a VBA code in which I am first checking for presence of a cell. If it is present then I should read the value and based on the condition I should either assign zero or value. I am having Function Read_Cell(C_To_Read As Range) As String Debug.Print C_To_Read.Offset(
-1) If C_To_Read.Offset(, -1) = 0 Then

---

Read_Cell = "0" Else: Read_Cell = C_To_Read.Value End Function but I am not sure how to read the value and pass to the function. A: How about this:
Option Explicit Function
GetBlankValue(r As Range) As String Select Case r.Value Case vbNull
GetBlankValue = "0" Case IsError(r) GetBlankValue = r.Value Case Else GetBlankValue = r.Value End Select End Function Usage: Sub test() Debug.Print
GetBlankValue(Range("A1")) End Sub

martial arts training Video training and video instruction is an important part of any martial arts instruction. In fact, you may say that the more you watch, the more you'll learn, and that is true. However, there is one type of training, that can be just as important and beneficial, but can be easily overlooked, and it is hands on training, or physical training. In fact, using your hands while doing any of your forms is just as important as using your feet. Martial arts training requires balance
