I am trying to get the textbox selected text by assigning this value to a variable. I can't seem to get the code to work. Private Sub cmdAddClient_Click() Dim tboxClientName As Control Dim uName As String Set tboxClientName = Me.txtClientName.Control tboxClientName.Text = Me.txtClientName.SelectedText MsgBox (tboxClientName.Text) uName = tboxClientName.Text End Sub A: All right, let's start with some understanding what you want to happen. In plain language. You don't want to get the text that the user has selected. The user can't select text of a textbox. They can select an area of the textbox, and it will be interpreted differently depending on what they are selecting. There is no way (assuming you're using a standard textbox) for your form to know what the user has done. What you want to do is get the text that the user is typing. But just for clarity and some understanding of how VBA works, let's go over what you've actually done. You're setting the Value of the textbox to something. Which is fine. You have set the value. Private Sub cmdAddClient_Click() Dim tboxClientName As Control Dim uName As String Set tboxClientName = Me.txtClientName.Control tboxClientName.Text = Me.txtClientName.SelectedText MsgBox (tboxClientName.Text) uName = tboxClientName.Text End Sub In your code, you have selected the textbox, which is fine. You've also set the 09e8f5149f

Host Name Changer

Evaluation: Mozilla Firefox Unable to detect the host name in any of its tabs, probably because it was automatically renamed after installation. Microsoft Windows By setting the computer's host name to "Windows 7", the computer didn't react to any of the tested actions, obviously because it's a built-in Windows feature. Microsoft Windows 8 Host Name Changer shows "Windows 8" as a host name, but pressing Enter didn't do anything. We had to select the name in Control Panel and change it manually. Microsoft Windows 8.1 Pressing Enter in the host name input field did nothing. Microsoft Windows 10 Host Name Changer shows "Windows 10" as a host name, but pressing Enter didn't do anything. We had to select the name in Control Panel and change it manually. Mac OS X Host Name Changer showed the host name normally, but pressing Enter didn't do anything. What's New In Host Name Changer?

Simply a great host name changer for Windows using the portable way. Host Name Changer does not include complicated options or configuration properties, so it can be handled by any types of users, since it doesn't require previous experience with networking utilities. Capturing a computer's screen using a webcam and saving it to an AVI file isn't an easy task. Frequently, many video converting utilities have difficulties converting the video in an acceptable format to save it. However, a remarkable program called ScreenKeeper has been developed to help in these situations. The software allows you to record your computer's screen on an AVI file and in several other formats. It's important to note that this software should be installed on the computer that's going to be recorded by a webcam, because you need it on your host computer to start recording. Before recording, set your webcam to its standard position and then check if the Capture Screen method is available in the "Display" menu. Capturing a screen using ScreenKeeper is very easy to implement. It will only require you to click a few buttons in the interface, as you can see in the following images: - A new window will appear in your taskbar, with a small icon on the left side of your screen. - Click the icon and you will be able to select the screen you wish to record. - Then, you need to move your webcam to the desired screen position and click the Record button. ScreenKeeper will stop the recording after about three minutes and the record is saved in an AVI video. You can also modify the image's quality and add effects to the screen by using the Capture Screen Wizard. The software is packed with a lot of useful features to improve the recording. These options are accessible from the "Display" menu: - Quality settings. - Speed options. - Scale options. - Effects. - Region recording. All of these settings can be changed before you start the recording. ScreenKeeper also allows you to record sound from your computer's microphone and save it to an MP3 file. It works well with most sound cards and it doesn't require installation of any extra software. The recording process is easy to initiate, so you can just select the audio source in the "Capture Settings" menu. Moreover, it will automatically stop when recording is finished. The software allows you to save your recording in the following formats: - AVI video. - MP
